1. This afternoon I requested permission of [] to quote him in my comments on the Report of the Inspector General. I referred to the recommendation that the DDP participate more than at present in the selection of JOT's. He authorized the following statement that "some of us in the DDP feel that we should participate a little more in the selection of JOT's, to the extent that it could be helpful, but this suggestion certainly reflects no dissatisfaction with recruitment in the past which we feel has been outstandingly good." He also agreed to my suggestion that ways and means for determining how the DDP participation could be helpful remain to be discussed.

2. In the light of [] comment, my immediate reaction to the proposal is, as I told him, that the DDP can be much more helpful in giving us a critical play-back on JOT's after they have been assigned to on-the-desk training than by participating in the selection process. In the latter we are considering candidates not only for all segments of the Agency, including those to be on directed assignment, but also many who will not EOD. It seems to me that such a procedure would avoid complicating our processes and prevent using the time of high-level officers unproductively.
